

Thermometers, by Sophia

- The name of this device is called a thermometer.
- A lot of people have it. It is used in school, at home or in hospitals.
- They are very helpful, and they are well known. There are different width and lengths, some look different and they have different colors.
- If you aren't feeling well and you don't know if you are sick get out your thermometer and use it. You can put it in three different places: you can put it under your armpit, you can put it in your mouth or you could put it in your ear.
- Thermometers have a bit of red liquid in them and the liquid goes higher if you are sick and it stays at your normal temperature [37]. If the thermometer breaks the red liquid is poisonous.
